BIRDS OF SPRING.

They are come, with flutter, and chirp, and song
To the earth, lain barren and cold so long;
And a heartsome, lightsome cheer they bring,
These wee adventurers, birds of spring!
Oh! I love the little bold-breasted things—
Braving the snow-scarfs—which winter flings
Spitefully back on the northern blast,
When forced to flee from the spring at last,—
Daring the rain clouds, heavy and gray,
Which chill the life of the sweet young May;
Through frosts and storms they blithely sing—
Bright little, brave little, birds of spring.

Plumed augurs of nearing summer days;
Of perfumed breezes; of blossom sprays;
Of strawberries, red as your lips, little maid;
Of bare-bells, as blue as your eyes, in the glade
Of emerald billows everywhere,
And swinging scythes in the sun-bright air;
Of mellow, slumberous, August noons;
Of hazy sunsets, and golden moons;
Of purpling vintage; of harvest sheaves;
Of boughs full-fruited; of ripening leaves;
Prophets clear of this shifting ring,
Do they warble and twitter—my birds of spring!

And these dainty denizens of the air,
In their prudence, and patience, and loving care
Are images sweet, so it seems to me,
Of a provident, tender humanity.
They fashion their dwellings, cosy and wee,
All for the younglings yet to be;
And soon, for the wants of the callow brood,
They will forage the garden, and field, and wood
From dawn until darkness of summer days,
They will wing their busy, voiceful ways;
And my heart will swell with the songs they sing
My early, my cheery, birds of spring!

WHEN THE SUN IS SHINING.

Pouting, my darling, because it rains,
And the flowers droop and the rain is falling,
And drops are blurring the window-panes,
And a moaning wind through the lane is calling
Crying and wishing the sky was clear,
And roses again on the lattice twining!
Ah, well, remember, my foolish dear,
"Tis easy to laugh when the sun is shining!"

When the world is bright and fair and gay,
And the glad birds sing in the fair June weather,
And summer is gathering, night and day,
Her golden chalice of sweets together,
When blue seas answer the sky above,
And bright stars follow the day's declining,
Why, then, 'tis no merit to smile, my love:
"Tis easy to laugh when the sun is shining!"

But THIS is the time the heart to test,
When winter is here and storms are howling,
And the earth from under her frozen vest
Looks up at the sad sky, mute and scowling:
The brave little spirit should rise to meet
The season's gloom and the day's repining;
And THIS is the time to be glad; for sweet,
"Tis easy to laugh when the sun is shining!"

Four Yeass Old.

What makes it night? I want to go
Way off behind the sky and see.
The world's as round as it can be,
Somebody told me, so I know.

You yellow Moon, how bright you are!
Have all the stars been put to bed?
And is it true, as nursey said,
That you are the baby-stars' mamma?

And are they sometimes naughty too?
I cried a little bit to-day;
The tears would come—where do they stay,
When people's eyes won't let them through?

My dolly's in in the grass out there,
Be quiet, Wind! you rustle so,
I'm 'fraid you'll wake her up, you know,
Please hush, dear Wind?—I wonder where

That four-leaved clover is that grew
Down by the fence this afternoon.
I'm four years old, too. Tell me, Moon,
When shall I be as old as you?

The clocks are striking in the town,
Oh, dear, I haven't said my prayers.
The little birds, I think, sing theirs—
I heard them when the sun went down.

Where did it go, and why? Some day
I'll know a great deal more, I guess,
When I m not quite so sleepy. Yes,
Mamma, I'm coming right away!

A REVOLUTIONARY REMINISCENCE.

The following story was told a number of years ago, by an old Revolutionary soldier, to his children and grandchildren, as they sat around the festive board of a Thanksgiving dinner. The writer, then quite a youth, was present—though not as a relative—and heard it, and treasured it up in his memory, and now gives it to the public, as nearly as he can remember, in the language of the veteran, suppressing only the names of the parties introduced, which for various reasons he does not wish here to state.

The 19th of April, 1775, (began the aged narrator,) was a day long to be remembered, not only by myself, but by all who take a pride in our glorious institutions. The ever-to-be-remembered morning dawned bright and beautiful, the sun rising in calm glory, as if it were not to witness the bloody opening of that great drama, upon which the eyes of the whole civilized world were instinctively turned, and whose closing scenes have left us a free and independent nation.

I was at that time about two-and twenty years of age, and was in the employ Mr. S*, of Lincoln, as a farm-hand. I had gone down to the field alone, about the usual hour; but had not been there long, when Mr. S* came hurrying down, and, in an excited tone, said:

"David, there are great things going on; and the time has now arrived when we must either take a bold stand and defend our rights with our lives, or tamely submit like cowards to British oppression."

I asked him what he meant, and he replied:

"A messenger has just passed by here, on his way to alarm the country, who says that a large body of British troops, on their march from Boston to Concord, passed through Lexington early this morning, and, without provocation, fired upon the militia and citizens, killing and wounding quite a number."

He futher said that great alarm prevailed throughout the country round about—that the bells had been rung and the drums beat to arms—that men were everywhere leaving their work and hurrying to the field of action—and asked me if I was willing to take a part in the coming struggle.

"Yes," I replied, "if matters have come to such a pass, I would rather be on the field of battle than here."

"Then quit your work at once," he said; "take your gun, and go and do your duty; for if you feel as I do, you would much rather die a freeman than live a slave."

Accordingly I left the field, and hurried to the house, where I equipped myself as well as I could, only being delayed some half an hour in running a few extra bullets, my powderhorn having fortunately been filled a few days before. Then putting up some provisions, for I did not know when I should return, I bade Mr. S* and his family good-bye, and told them, if they never saw me again, I hoped at least they would hear a good account of me.

I had not gone far, when I met a horseman, riding at full speed. I asked him the news, and he sung out, without stopping his horse:

"A large body of British troops, after shooting down several men in Lexington, have marched upon Concord, to destroy the town. Hurry on, for every man is wanted!"

He said something more, but this was all I caught—for his horse, being on the run, had carried him beyond my hearing.

I then struck across the fields to the Concord road, running most of the way; and when I came in sight of the road, I saw many persons hurrying up from every direction, each man bringing with him his gun and whatever else he thought needful—sometimes alone, like myself—but mostly in parties of two, three, and four—seldom more.

Soon after I got into the Concord road, I met a couple of men, partially uniformed, hurrying towards Lexington. I stopped and asked them the news; and one replied very excitedly:

"Dreadful times, friend! dreadful times! A large body of British infantry and grenadiers have marched on to Concord to destroy the place, which they are doing at this minute."

"Then why are you not there to defend it?" inquired I.

"Because the citizens and militia are at present too few to cope with the British; and we, with many others, have been dispatched by Colonel B*, to act as scouts, alarm the country, and get full reports of the doings below."

I then asked them if they thought I could be of any service at Concord; and they answered that I had better go and see for myself; but that everybody was greatly alarmed, and so far there was no unity of action.

After this I did not hurry as before, but walked, keeping a sharp look-out, and wondering to myself how the affair was going to terminate.

Not thinking it exactly prudent to approach the village by the road, and not caring to be mixed up with other parties, I once more turned off into the fields, ascended some high ground, whence I could get a partial view of the place, and form some idea of what was going on.

It was little I could see, however, save a dense smoke, rising from the center of the place, and here and there a glimpse of British soldiers, and some of our own volunteers, as they marched in companies to take different positions.

In an open lot, just back of the village, stood quite a collection of women and children; and on what is now called Burying-ground Hill, were a number of British officers, apparently surveying the place through their glasses; while from every direction, I could see citizens hurrying up, but more in bodies than before, to join their countrymen, and, if neccessary, assist in repelling the invaders.

As I thus stood looking, I heard the report of guns, but apparently only some three or four.

Next I heard a single discharge, and then what appeared to be a volley.

This was followed by loud cries, and another volley, and for a few minutes by rapid and continual discharges, by which I knew that an action had fairly commenced on both sides.

While I stood hesitating, not knowing in what manner it was best for me to act, the firing ceased; and soon after, to my great joy, I saw the head of the column of British infantry filing down the road.

I now hurried round to the rear of the evacuating forces, and on entering the village, found some hundreds of our men collected on the common, almost without order, companies apparently being disbanded, and the greatest excitement and indignation prevailing.

Some half a dozen or more had been killed and wounded on both sides, and a considerable amount of property had been destroyed by the enemy; but the latter, having suddenly become alarmed at the determined action and the rapidly increasing numbers of the citizens, had beat a full retreat, leaving two of their dead where they had fallen, and were now filing down the road in fine military order, with strong flanking parties thrown out on either side, their splendid uniforms and burnished arms glittering in the bright sunshine and making an imposing show.

But thinking only of their dastardly and wanton acts, and that they were only vulnerable men like themselves, the excited crowd speedily revolved to follow and harrass them.

"Let us have revenge!" cried one: "revenge for our comrades, shot down in cold blood!"

"Aye, let us follow and shoot them down in the same way!" exclaimed another.

"Who is to lead us?" asked a third.

"We want no leader!" shouted a fourth. "Let every man do his duty by himself, and shoot the scoundrels wherever he can reach them."

With this the people set up a wild shout of approval; and immediately the crowd began to scatter, most of them taking direction of the retreating army, I following with the majority.

On coming up within bullet range of the rear gaurd, we opened upon them a general fire, and saw some five or six of them drop from the ranks.

They immediately replied with a volley, hitting four of our party and killing two, one of whom fell dead beside me.

Upon this we immediately scattered, leaping the fences and taking to the fields, each man acting for himself.

Loading my gun, I ran forward; and, getting under cover of some bushes, I selected my man, and fired again—the others generally acting in the same manner.

Thus, without concert, and without any regular leader, we began a mode of warfare best suited to our circumstances and condition; and which, during that long, hot day—and it was uncommonly hot for the season—cost many a soldier, the very flower of the British army, his life.

I shall make no attempt to give you a detailed account of that day's fight; in fact, I do not think I could if I would; for I am getting well advanced in years now, and my memory is beginning to fail me. Indeed, so far as I was concerned, it would only be a repetition of loading, getting a new position, firing, and keeping out of the way of the flanking parties—which did all in their power to protect the main body—running down, shooting, and bayonetting the provincials wherever they could. Our men completely lined the way of the retreating army—fired from every bush, house, fence, or covert, and even the open fields—and sometimes maintained a running fight, where the harrassed enemy had a good opportunity for pursuit.

From being in the rear, I gradually made my way beyond the head of the advanced column; and having secreted myself behind a large rock, I was waiting for them to come up to a certain aim, when suddenly two soldiers, who had been thrown forward as scouts, approached me unperceived. The first intimation I had of their presence was by two shots, fired at a distance of less than twenty yards—one ball passing through my hat, and the other through the fleshy part of my left arm, the scar of which I still retain.

By the time I had got upon my feet, they were in the act of rushing upon me with their bayonets, one a couple of feet or so in advance of the other. There was no time to be lost; and taking a rapid sight at the foremost, I pulled the trigger; but, from some cause, my gun for the first time that day missed fire.

I was now so situated, with the rock behind me, it that was impossible for me to escape; and as my foes came bounding forward, with loud yells and bitter curses, I thought my last hour had come.

As quick as lightning I cocked my gun again and again pulled the trigger, with the muzzle almost touching the breast of the nearest.

This time, thank Heaven! the piece did its duty, and lodged the contents in the very heart of my foe, who fell back dead, without even a groan.

The next moment the bayonet of his companion passed through my side, with so much force as to drive me back against the rock, inflicting a severe and dangerous wound, and holding me completely in his power.

For a few moments I struggled to extricate myself, but rapidly grew weak and faint; when, finding me sinking to the earth, the soldier withdrew his weapon and made another quick thrust.

In his haste he missed me nearly altogether, but passed his bayonet through my clothes, where it became momentarily entangled.

Throwing down my gun and seizing his, I now feebly attempted to foil his fell intent; but being the stronger of the two, and himself unwounded, he fairly tore the weapon from my grasp.

As, fairly foaming with wrath, he drew back for the fatal lunge, a bullet passed through his head, and he fell dead at my side, I had only time to see a friendly form hurrying up to me, when I fainted and knew no more.

When I recovered consciousness, I found myself lying upon a bed, in the house of a Samaritan, and learned that the British had been met at Lexington by a large reinforcement, and had effected their retreat to Charlestown, being followed to the very Neck by some of our men, and suffering continual losses all the way.

I also learned that my good host was the friend who had so providentially come to my rescue. Being a little distance behind me, he had heard the firing, and had hurried up just in time to save me. Taking up my apparently lifeless form, he had borne me back and secreted me in some bushes, standing guard by me till the enemy had passed; and then with the aid of some friends, had carried me to his own house, about half a mile distant.

Here, under the best of care, I remained for several weeks; and just as I had once more begun to get abroad in the fresh air, news came of the glorious battle of Bunker's Hill, and filled me with new vigor and life.

A few days after, though still far from complete recovery, I joined the army at Cambridge, and once more took an active part in that great and righteous contest, whose glorions results, my children, we all now enjoy.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

CACKLING.—All sorts of incredible stories are told of the ostrich farms of California. The latest is that in the morning, during laying time, if the wind is in the right quarter, the cackling of the hen ostrich can be heard at a distance of forty miles.

A BRIGAND.—Black Bart has robbed more than a score of stages in California single handed. He had a habit of writing doggerel verses and pinning them to rifled express boxes. The rewards offered for his capture amounted to nearly $15,000, and a stray bit of his versification finally betrayed him.

A BODY OF WATER.—When it is considered that the Ohio drains a basin of more than two hundred thousand square miles in area, and that the estimated weight of an inch of rain over a single square mile is about sixty thousand tons, the mental effort to reckon up the devastations wrought by the late floods seems useless.

Too Much "Vim."

Riding on the cars one day last week, on one of the roads out of Chicago was a man, not yet in the prime of life, so far as years go, but who was in his old age, so far as mental and physical condition is to be considered. He was what might be called a total wreck in person and appearance. A few years ago this man was considered one of the most promising young business men in the city. He was full of getuptoitivness pluck, push and energy. But he lacked one thing needful—caution. In an evil hour he became excited in speculation, and for a while he made money hand over fist. Everything he touched seemed to turn to money. He finally sold out his legitimate business and went into speculation exclusively. He had the finest of everything. But one day stocks began to tumble. The man knew what he was about; invested more and finally he too, with his stocks took a terrible tumble, and when he looked about he found himself a bankrupt. He was too proud to take a clerkship, but pawned his fine clothes, jewelery, etc., and took to drink. The result of all of it is that man to-day is deep down in the mire of despondency, and the friends he had in his prosperous days, those who feasted at his expense, and those whom he had helped in time of need only point their finger at him and sneeringly call him "the fool." Vim and energy is a good thing. Ambition and desire to better one's self is an excellent trait in any man's composition, but with these traits a young man is very apt to get "rattled," if he lets his ambition run away with common sense or when he refuses to listen to reason. A young horse generally stands a better chance to win a hurdle race than an old one, but in its eagerness to jump the hurdle it often breaks its neck. Better be a little old and fogyish than to let reckless youth run at will unbridled. Let well enough alone, young man, and stick to legimate business, and you will, under ordinary circumstances, come out the winner. Young man, if you would win a fortune, work and wait, but work a good deal more than you wait.—Peck's Sun.

Young Warriors.

At the first battle of Bull Run John Meigs, a son of General Meigs, and a West Point cadet, seeing no generals about, assumed and for some time directed the movement of the troops, the officers supposed he was aid-de-camp, and that the orders came from the generals. Seeing the Confederates massing in the wood to take Green's Battery, Meigs ordered Colonel Mathewson to move quietly with his regiment to the support of the battery. The movement was promptly executed by the First California, and then two other regiments were brought up. Later in the day the youthful general, seeing the field was lost, said to Colonel Mathewson: "You had better fall back toward Centerville."

"And by whose authority do you give me such orders as that?" inquired the colonel.

"Well, sir," said young Meigs, "the truth is for the last two hours I have been unable to find any generals, and have been commanding myself."

I saw young Meigs on the field, and he was wounded through the knee, but remained on duty, although in terrible pain and faint from the loss of blood. He was afterward killed in the Shenadoah Valley.

In the First Iowa there was a little mite of a drummer boy named Edward or, as he was more commonly called, Eddie Lee. At Wilson's Creek he had both feet shot off by a cannon ball. A wounded Confederats, who was shot through the bowels and lay near Eddie had taken off his suspenders. and making of them ligatures, tied up Eddie's stumps to stop the flow of blood. During the night the soldier died and Eddie lay on the field all night beside him. In the morning, as soon as it was light, the First Iowa were surprised to hear Eddie's drum beating the reveille down in a ravine. One of the men, following the sound of the drum, went to him and found the little fellow seated on the ground vigorously beating away, his drum fastened to a bush by his side.

"Good morning, corporal," he said; "oh, get me some water, I am so thirsty."

The corporal got the water, and while he was giving the boy a drink, the Confederates came up and captured them both. A horseman took Eddie up tenderly before him and carried him to the Confederate camp, where his stumps were amputated and the wounds carefully dressed, but he died in a few hours after the operation was performed.

BETRAYED BY BAD GRAMMAR.

"Three of these girls say they go to school regularly," remarked Justice Power in the Tombs police court the other day, as four children were about to step down. Agent Chiardi, who had arrested the three as delinquents, and the other for picking up bones, took the fourth girl to one side and said he knew the others did not go to school.

"Aren't they all together?" asked the court.

"No, sir," answered one of the trio. "Us don't belong to she!"

"What? The next girl who goes to school!—was that sentence correct?"

"No, sir."

"What should she have said?"

"Her ain't one of we."

"Horrors! The next try it."

"She ben't one of us three."

The justice groaned and asked the fourth girl to repeat the sentence. She had said nothing about school, but she replied, "She is not one of us."

"You are discharged," said the court "The others will have a chance to study in a reformatory."

HORSES.—An idle team may be wintered upon good hay alone, but when lightly worked, a little grain at noon may be needed. They are to be kept in good health and flesh, and the amount of grain should be governed accordingly. Horses doing heavy work will need a few quarts of ground oats and corn daily, in addition to an abundance of the best hay. Young colts should have excellent care, for their future usefulness depends largely upon the growth they make the first winter. Linseed oil cake in small doses is one of the best remedies for costiveness in the young farm animals.

Secret of Sheridan's Luck.

How a Little Quaker Schoolma'am Helped Him to Win Winchester.

I saw by the Philadelphia papers the other day that the Grand Army posts in that city had given a reception to Mrs. R. M. Bonsal, and happening to walk down the street with General Sheridan, I asked him if he knew her.

"Do I know her? he replied with a surprised look on his face. "I should say I did. That woman was worth a whole brigade of soldiers and several batteries of artillery down in the Winchester campaign, and she was one of the genuine heroines of the war."

"Tell me about her?"

"Well, you see I always believe in fighting on information. People said I was reckless and daring, and all that, and when I happened to win a fight they said it was Sheridan's luck. But I tell you there wasn't any luck about it. I never went it blind. I always knew what I was going to hit before I made a strike, and generally tried to strike at the right time."

"And down there in '64," continued the general, "when I lay bfeore Winchester I wanted information of what was going on in the enemy's lines, and I wanted it awful bad. I must have it, don't you see, but how I was going to get it I didn't know. Crook was pretty well acquainted in all that country, and one day I asked him if he didn't know some one in Winchester we could depend on. He said there was a little Quaker girl in the town that he thought was all right, and I concluded to try her. There was an old darkey who had a garden patch about fifteen miles from my headquarters, and he had a pass to go into Winchester three or four times a week with vegetables for the Confederate officers and townspeople. I had him brought to my headquarters one night and asked him if he knew the schoolma'am. He said he did, and then I asked him if he could get a note to her without giving her away. He said he could, and then I wrote her a letter on tissue paper, appealing to her loyalty and requesting her to give me some information of what was going on in the rebel camp. I wrapped the note up in the foil, in a little wad, don't you know, and made the old darky carry it in his mouth. The next day he went into town with a load of vegetables and gave it to her."

"What was her name?"

"Rebecca Wright was her name then, but she is married now and her husband's name is Bousal."

"Did you get an answer?"

"Yes, the darky brought me back a reply in which she gave me some very important information and promised to send me more from time to time. We kept up a correspondence after that and I knew everything old Early was doing. After a few weeks she sent me word that Kershaw's division of 8,000 or 10,000 had been detached and was going to join Lee's army. As soon as I learned that he was gone and was far enough off to prevent his getting back, I made the attack and captured Winchester."

"Did you find the girl when you got into town?"

"Indeed I did, and my report of that battle was written in her school room."

"Was she ever rewarded?"

"Well, I got her a place in the treasury department, and it was there she got acquainted with her husband, but I think she is entitled to a pension."

A LOVE STORY.

A romance of A. T. Stewart's life is told by the New York correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch. About sixty years ago Cornelia Clinch was one of the prettiest girls of New York. Her father was a rich ship chandler who lived in a big house in a fashionable quarter. He was a self-made man and thought every man ought to be the architect of his own fortune. So he frowned away every wealthy young fop who came to woo Cornelia, and sent her regularly to school to learn to be a sensible, useful woman. Old Clinch attended St. Mark's Church, and on Sunday young Steward saw the daughter there. He fell in love with her and became a regular attendant at the church. He got acquainted with Cornelia, and as he was poor but industrious, the old man smiled upon him and invited him to call and take dinner with them. After awhile Steward asked Cornelia a very interesting question, and she, like a good girl, blushed and said:

"Y-e-e-s—if papa says so."

Then Steward visited old Clinch, and he said:

"Want to marry Nelly, eh? Think she's got a rich father, eh? And you'd like to come in for a share of his earnings, eh?"

"No, sir, you needn't leave her or me a cent. I'll soon be richer than you anyhow."

"You will, will you? Well, I like that. Go ahead and take her then, and Heaven bless you both."

So the young folks, who were tremendously in love with other, were married and went to live in a modest little cottage on Reade street, and were glad to be able to cover the floor with rag carpet. There, it is said, they lived an ideally happy life.

HUMOROUS.

"Let me dream again:" So you were arrested and fined yesterday for being drunk and dis orderly, and here you are again to-day for the same offense! Prisoner (who has been pumped on): Yes, Judge, but can you arrest a man twice on the same charge? Judge: Certainly not. Prisoner: Then lemme go, Judge, this is the same old drunk!

She—"I think it's a sin and a shame to kill the dear little feathered songsters. If I had my way I'd make a law against killing birds. Guess people wouldn't starve if they let the birds alone." He—"But what would the ladies do without hat ornaments?" She—"Oh, that's an entirely different thing. Of course when there's an actual necessity for shooting the dear creatures one must stifle one's feelings, you know."

A crowd of sitters were occupying their usual positions in a grocery store swapping stories, and watching for a chance to "catch" somebody, when one of them carlessly remarked:

"It is a very high-toned affair."

"What is?" quickly interrogated a young man from the suburbs.

"A thunder storm," was the reply.

The man who was caught merely said: "oh," and congratulated himself on the fact that lightning seldom strikes twice in the same place.

A scientific doughnut maker: "Bread!" exclaimed a Vasser College girl. "Bread! Well, I should say I can make bread. We studied that in our first year. You see, the yeast ferments, and the gas thus formed permeates everywhere and transforms the plastic material into a clearly obvious atomic structure and then—" "But what is the plastic material you speak of?" "Oh! that is commonly called the sponge." "But how do you make the sponge?" "Why, you don't make it; the cook always attends to that. Then we test the sponge with the thermometer and hydrometer and a lot of other instruments, the names of which I don't remember, and then hand it back to the cook, and I don't know what she does with it then, but when it comes on the table it is just splendid."

Ten Million Car Wheels.

"There are more than 10,000,000 iron car wheels in use on American railroads," said the master mechanic of one of the trunk lines, "and it requires about 525 pounds of pig iron to make one wheel. About 1,250,000 wheels are worn out every year, and the same number of new ones must be made to take their places. The iron men are called upon for only a small proportion of the 312,500 tons of material required for these new wheels, however, for nearly 290,000 tons are supplied by the worn-out wheels themselves. Formerly the life of a car wheel was estimated at eight years, but the reduction of the railroad generally to the standard guage and the improvements in loading and unloading facilities, have materially decreased the length of service that a wheel may be depended on to perform. The uniformity in gauge keeps cars in more continuous use, while the decrease in time of loading and unloading enables them to be put to more active service even where they are run only on short local routes.

"These figures do not include the wheels on palace coaches and the best class of passenger coaches. The wheels on the grade of rolling stock are now made almost exclusively of paper. They are as servicable as iron, and combine lightness with strength a great desideratum where speed and economy in motive power are of paramount importance."

VALEDICTORY.

Having leased my interest in the JOURNAL office to my partner Mr. R. A. Bumiller, he becomes its sole editor and publisher from this day.

It is but fitting that I return my sincere thanks to the public for their confidence and support during the time of my connection with the JOURNAL and I kindly ask their continued patronage for my successor, who has for the last three months conducted the paper without any assistance by me. The office is in good condition for publishing a good, readable newspaper, and for printing all kinds of job work in best styles.

In retiring from the management of the JOURNAL I sincerely beg pardon of all whom I may have unintentionally wronged. Having our share of the weakness and faults common to poor humanity, I trust to be judged in kindness and charity.

B. O. DEININGER.

April 1st, 1884.

THE hopes of the Republican party that the tariff question will make a split in the democratic party, are gone. The caucus of the democratic members of Congress has established unity in the democratic ranks as far as the tariff is concerned and that means that our side will win in the coming presidential election if they only pull together. The Morrison bill has not yet been passed but we look for it, and hope the democrats in Congress will not miss this opportunity to gain the upper-hand.

THE friends of Hon. S. R. Peale are urging him to become a candidate for Congress, pledging him their earnest support in case he consents, says the Clinton Democrat.

BLAINE is evidently the favorite candidate of the Republicans for the presidential chair, while Arthur takes the the second place in his chances for the nomination.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 31, 1884.

The Democratic caucus on Tuesday night was fully attended, and the complete harmony that characterized its proceedings proved a holy disappointment to those Republicans who saw the Democratic party die to slow music over the sanguinary tilt between the Tariff and anti-Tariff men. Though no tangible result was reached by the caucus so far as action on the Morrison bill was concerned, the sequel shows that no untoward acrimony is going to rise up in the House just for the delectation of the other fellows. The mission of Mr. Carlisle as a peace-maker in the caucus, found its fruition in the adoption of a resolution to reduce the tax on fruit-brandies, and this with a little sop thrown out to the Randall protection extremists in the shape of some promised modifications in the Morrison bill will doubtless keep the party together in the House under the general watchword of "Tariff reform." That the Morrison bill will pass the House as it came from the committee, with the few not very assential amendments suggested in the caucus, there seems to be no present doubt.

The developements that are being made through Mr. Springer's committee affecting the Government's side of the Star-Route cases, comprise a sweet morsal to roll under the Republican tongue during this year's campaign. The criminations and recriminations that have invested the examination thus far, out of the mouths of such witnesses as Cook and Crowley and Corkhill and Ker and Bliss and Spencer, go to show that there never was and there never could have been any serious intention on the part of any of these prosecutors to work the conviction of anybody who was known to be really guilty. That these men could have followed up this sort of deception during a trial that lasted seven long months without a detection of their motives, is another of the many illustrations of Republican departmential idiocy. But after the Ottman case, in which the Government thought its own officers compromised with the thief who stole $48,000 of Government money, by paying back to him $4,000 of the money it had recovered from him, and divided up the remainder between its counsel for effecting the compromise, what may we not expect?

The peculiar financial foresight that ever accompanies the construction of the Government's public buildings, is again realized in the completion and occupation of the St. Louis post office, and the approaching completion of that at Philadelphia. The estimated cost of the St. Louis affair, which is characterized as an architectural abortion, was $1,250,000, while the actual cost has been a little more than $6,000,000, with several walls and partitions to be taken down and rahabilitated. The original estimate of the Philapelphia post office, if my memory serves me, was $2,500,000, but if the Government manages to get it without liquidating contracts amounting to $8,000,000 or $9,000,000, it will do what it never did before—get ahead of the contractor. The St. Louis building was commenced in 1870, and has therefore occupied fourteen years in its construction, with the prospect of two or three years more in supplementary work to replace the shoddy.

PHONO.

CINCINNATI RIOT.

Dreadful Scenes, Death and Destruction Everywhere.

On Friday night a terrible riot was started at Cincinnati caused by the indignation of a mob over the unsatisfactory verdict found guilty of manslaughter rendered by the jury in the murder case of William Benner and his accomplice Joe Palmer, colored. Some 30 musket shots were fired that night by the militia who hoped to scare the mob away. But the mob would not clear the street around the jail, being determined to use the Lynch-law on the murderers and at midnight the jail was fired by the crowd and threads made to cut the hose and prevent the fire department from extinguish the flames. Temporary quiet was restored the next day [Saturday], but there was a restlessness on the part of the people and an apprehension on the part of the authorities, that was omnious of a removal of the troubles. That this feeling was not without reason is shown in the following accounts.

THE SCENES SATURDAY NIGHT.

CINCINNATI, March 29.—At ten o'clock to-night, while the streets were full of excited men and the crowd in the vicinity of the court house was surging in even greater numbers than that which had attempted to lynch the murderer last night the riot alarm was again sounded. There had been indiscriminate firing on the part of the mob for an hour. The militia returned the fire, but aiming their guns over the top of the buildings. Their efforts to frighten the mob had no effect at all. Just before the riot alarm was sounded several dynamite bombs were thrown into the jail yard. They burst with terrific force. An attack was made upon the treasury office in the court bouse. The doors were battered down and an entrance effected. It is supposed that coal oil was poured about the rooms. At all events a fire was started soon afterward. It burned fiercely, although the building is supposed to be fire-proof. The fire department was called out, but the mob refused to permit the firemen to get near the court house. An effort was made to set the armory on fire, but it was unsuccessful.

At 10.30 o'clock the militia charged the mob on Court street. John J. Dismond, one of the captains of the First regiment National Guard, was shot dead. Sergeant Malone and Private McGuire were killed in the same charge and many were wounded.

Two drug stores on Vine street, near Court, are full of wounded men. Physicians have been called and are dressing their wounds.

One of the fire companies tried to force its way through the mob to the court house, but it was driven back precitately. The rioters then battered the engine to pieces with axes. The Gattling gun was brought into play at 11 o'clock. There are wounded and dying men in all the drug stores and saloons in the vicinity of the court house.

The people are wild with excitement, and are leaving their houses with such valuables as they can carry through fear that they will be burned out. The militia are shooting to kill, a division of the mob has marched down Main street to the gun stores of Kittredge & Co. and Powell & Co. They want more pistols and cartridges. A guard resisted them and there is now sharp firing in that vicinity. Allen's drug store, at the corner of Fifth and Main streets, has been broken open and is full of rioters. It is not known what they are after, unless it is oil to start fires with. People are gathering at Music Hall for the purpose of taking measures for stopping the slaughter. It is understood that a message will be sent to the sheriff to surrender the jail. It is thought that 200 men have been killed or wounded since 10 o'clock. The mob shows no signs of dispersing. The militia stationed at the stations have marched to the court house and are now in action.

At midnight the militia withdrew into the jail yard and the mob held high carnival. It was almost a commune. The court house was burned from cellar to dome. The law library and recorder's office were broken open, and cords of books and records piled up wherever there was wood work. The mob yell with glee about the burning building. The killed and wounded have been carried in every direction, and it was impossible to get lists. The estimate of 200 may be large, and it may turn out to be too small. The militia show no disposition to resume the fight, unless they are followed into the jail yard. The hope now is that the mob will not attempt to burn any other building.

SUNDAY'S RECORD OF LAWLESSNESS.

CINCINNATI, March 30.—At daylight this morning all was quiet at the scene of last night's rioting. The broken walls of the burning court house were distinctly defined, and over the ruins of the treasurer's office the glow of the fire was still visible. Only pools of blood here and there in the trampled dust were to be seen. This morning the mayor issued a formal call for a meeting of citizens to devise means of protecting the city from the ravings of the mob. A list of one hundred names was selected and a majority of them were notified at once. Of those notified the greater number responded to the call immediately, meeting at the mayor's office. Several proclamations were issued and a request to concetrate all the available force of the Ohio militia in the city.

Accordingly Adjutant General Finley ordered Colonal Entreken, of the Sixth regiment, with headquarters at Chillicothe, to muster his troops at once and come to Cincinnati by special train. This was done and the regiment arrived at 4 o'clock.

Over 200 prominent citizens met to-night and endorsed the action of the mayor and adjutant general. The Thirteenth regiment, with the unattached Second troop of cavalry, Scott Dragoons, of Hillsboro, and the Seventeenth regiment from Coshscton, arrived this evening, and troops from Dayton, Cleveland Covington and Toledo are expected during the night.

AN EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic an Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent. profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents, and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every houseowner, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its salability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $300 a month clear, and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or General Agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through sub-agents for ninety days, and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more that double the amount we guarranteed, and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to every one out of employment who will send us three one-cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer, to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will loose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money.

—C. A. Sturgis of Lewisburg was up last week. It keeps Charley pretty busy to run his business at that place and keep track of his little daughter, Bessie, in this place. But he manages it right well. Don't forget to call on your JOURNAL neighbors.

—Samuel Green of Aaronsburg has again sold his house and lot in that town. The party, who were in the first place buying for the Reformed church, failed to comply with the articles of agreement. The present purchasor is Dr. P. T. Musser.

—Miss Gertrude Russell, who had been attending school at Aaronsburg this winter was presented a fine album last week by her teacher and schoolmates on the occasion of her departure for the present home of her father, Mr. Willis Russell, near Lewisburg.

—A new advertisement will appear in our columns next week,showing that J. R. Smith & Co's. (limited) establishment at Milton is still head quarters for furniture, instruments, Chinaware, and every imaginable thing calculated to furnish a house comfortably, neatly and cheaply.

—Mr. Thomas Rote and wife came home to Aaronsburg the other week. We understand that he had sold his property in Orangeville, Ills., with the intention of locating in Kansas City, Mo., but on receiving the news of his father's illness came home to assist in taking care of the invalid.

—On Sunday afternoon the house of Dr. Smith in Nittany Valley, on the pike leading to Lock Haven, was completely destroyed by fire. The barn and out buildings were by strenuous work saved. We could not ascertain whether the property was insured or not, nor the cause of the conflagration.

—Persons desiring to take lessons on the piano or organ will find an excellent teacher in Mr. H. J. Kurzenknabe, who has located in Millheim and has his residence with Mr. Jonathan Harter on Penn Street, where he will be pleased to accept any engagements for teaching vocal or instrumental music, as well as tunning and repairing.

—Borough ordinances were so little regarded in Millheim for the last few years that the present council found it necessary to issue some special proclamations, setting forth their intent of strictly enforcing some of them and stating the penalty for violation of the same. Right—we hope they will succeed in all their efforts of this particular kind.

AARONSBURG ACADEMY.—The undersigned will open a select school at Aaronsburg on the 14th inst., and continue twenty weeks, with a vacation during harvest.

Tuition for a term of ten weeks; primary studies $3; advanced $5; languages $2 extra.

The patronage of the community is respectfully solicited.

—McDonald's improved Liver Pills are the most reliable and satisfactory Liver Pills made. Many Doctors buy them by the thousand for use in their daily practice. No higher mark of confidence could be quoted. We do not know any proprietary medicine that stands so high in the estimation of the medical profession as McDonald's improved Liver Pills. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

TO THE LADIES AND OTHERS INTERESTED.—Mrs. M. Harris, of the largest Millinery Store of Lewisburg, and,indeed, of the county, is now in the eastern cities making selections of Spring and Summer Goods. These will soon be unpacked at their headquarters—most likely this week—when the ladies will find it to their interest to call and examine some. Particulars will be given by advertisement next week.

—Messrs. Jonathan and A. J. Harter, of Millheim, will go into the harness business, having ordered a large and fine stock the other day. They expect to offer them at public sales at different times and places. Their first sale will come off on Saturday, April 12th, 1884, at Rebersburg, to which they respectfully invite everybody to come and give them a share of their patronage. They are live business men,fair and square dealers and expect to give satisfaction in every respect. They also keep a large stock of light and heavy,single and double harness, Checklines and Halters on hand which they will sell in town at any time.

—On Thursday evening of last week a company numbering about 25, all of town, took a trip to the country and put up at H. E. Duck's residence as a surprise to that genial gentleman and his esteemed family. The party was equipped with oysters, crackers &c. and after having been welcomed by the host they took possession of the kitchen and proceeded to prepare a sumptuous supper, which was highly enjoyed by all present. After that the company repaired to other parts of the house, indulging in social games and listening to some choice instrumental music rendered by that prince of fellows, Harry Kurzenknabe. About 11 o'clock the party returned to Millheim and judging from their expressions they were all pleased with the visit.

—Now that the sudden and violent changes of the weather occur every twenty four hours, almost everyone has a troublesome cold, which, if neglected may produce results that will trouble you for the remainder of your life. Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine is especially deserving praise in this class of complaints. It never fails! It never disappoints! Instructions for treatment of croup and whooping cough also accompany each bottle. Every family especially where there is children should have a bottle. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

—On Saturday evening March 29th the home of the undersigned was graced by the presence of three of his former pupils, viz: The Misses Katie I. Musser and Minnie G. Kurtz, two of Aaronsburg's most estimable and promising young ladies and the genial Charley H. Musser. After spending an hour or two in friendly social intercourse the prime object of their visit was made known by the presentation of a most elegant inkstand to their late teacher. Believing that the handsome expression of the kiudly feelings which they entertained for him, he sincerely hopes that their future career may be as brilliant as that of the past and that they may become an ornament to their time and generation.

W. FRANK MUSSER.

—A paying investment.—At this season of the year when your cows fail in milk,your horses become rough in coat, your pigs refuse to thrive, the hens won't lay as many eggs as they should, you will find a package or two of McDonald's Celebrated Tonic and Blood Purifying Horse and Cattle Powders judiciously administered an investment that will pay big dividends. They are positively the best Horse and Cattle Powders made. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded. What other manufacturer dare make this offer. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

—Cal Weaver of Aaronsburg,a former clerk in Major Fisher's store at Penn Hall, who had intended going to Dakota this spring, will go into the mercantile business at Shamokin with Prof. W. T. Meyer and some other party. He has already gone there and Prof. Meyer moved his goods there during the last week. We clip the following from the Shamokin Times:

New Partnership.

The old store stand on Market street formerly owned by Major J. H. Adams, changed hands this morning, the new incumbents being F. A. Miller, Prof. W. T. Meyer and C. A. Weaver, under the firm name of Miller, Weaver & Co. Messrs.Miller and Weaver, who will assume the actual control of the store, are young and energetic and as both have a good business experience we can bespeak for them success in their new undertaking. The above is one of the oldest stands on Market street.

—In a letter from Rock Grove, Stephenson Co., Illinois we received information of the death of Harriett Mogle, wife of Frederick Mogle, which occur on the 15th ult. The deceased at the time of her death was aged 79 years, 7 months and 23 days. She was born in Winsor township, Berks county, Pa., July 22nd, 1807. When quite young she went to live with her uncle William Strunk in Lebanon county, this state and in 1829 at the age of 22 years she moved with her uncle to Millheim, where she formed the acquaintance of Frederick Mogle, whom she married on the 15th of February, 1831. They emigrated to Rock Grove, Illinois in 1846, and lived in the state of matrimony 53 years, and 1 month. Had eight children,6 sons and 2 daughters, 26 grand children and 2 great grand children, all living except 1 daughter. For the Journal.

Burbank Wayne Co., Ohio,
March 24, 1884.

DEAR EDITOR:

As you have not heard from me for some time I concluded you should hear from me once more. Let me compliment you on the neat and stylish appearance of the JOURNAL in its new dress. I will send you a dollar soon to renew, please keep on sending it. I read with interest the account of the dedication of the new Lutheran church at Millheim. I am really glad you succeeded so well in so good a cause, you know next to a Methodist, I am a Lutheran. We just closed a protracted meeting at the M. E. church, the result was 25 Conversions,20 united with the M. E. Church.

Well it really feels like as winter was over. The weather has been delightful for a few days and the mud is drying up, I am glad I don't have to move. We have had rather a pleasant winter and excellent good health in this part of the country.

I wish now to tell you a wonderful story about a hog that lived without food for 6 months, Tanner out done in the matter of fasting. Whose hog can beat it? About the 4th of September last Mr. Geo. Burr, proprietor of the Burrwood and State Experimental farms,2½ miles north of Burbank, O, lost a valuable Berkshire sow. He advertised his loss extensively, but never heard anything from the animal until last Friday March 21. While removing the bottom of a straw stack, made in September last he found the pig alive. The pig is nothing but skin and bones, and has been visited by a large number of people since the discovery. The pig had been without food or water for over six months. This is no fish story, but solid facts. The pig is most devoid of hair, but will survive and recover.

Politics is warming up a little in Ohio. The Republicans' first choice for President and Vice President in these parts are Blaine and Lincoln. The Democrats go in for Payne. I think he would make a very oily candidate. But I must stop.

Very truly yours
G. W. HOLLOWAY.

PENN HALL SHAVINGS.

Mr. Freddy Heckman who has been teaching school in Patton township is home. Freddy is one of your jolly fellows and we are always glad to have him about.

Mr. Yony Condo who had the misfortune to cut his foot is able to be about again.

Rumor has it that Jack Plane and the News Boy are one. How is it—who can tell?

If the News Boy wishes to make known the whereabouts of Jack Plane, he is at perfect liberty to do so. We try to hoe our own row.

The entertainment given by the scholars of the Spring Mills academy on Friday evening was a grand success. The house was crowded and the preformances splendid.

The roof of the Saint Elmo caught fire last week,which caused quite an excitement. The damage done was mostly caused by the water which was being poured on. Charley keep your chimmey clean and save the community a scarce.

The string band at this place has no teacher yet. What is going to become of all the violins, boys?

James Ettlinger is home on a short visit.

J. C. Motz's saw mill has been run on full time lately—day and night.

SPRING MILLS ITEMS.

Moving is the general order of the day.

Forny Confer who was laid up sick for a week is back to Grenoble's Store.

The School Exhibition was a decided success. The house was crowded and some of the speakers will some day make great orators.

I. B. Jamison had the misfortune to fall off the Horse and break a rib.

Our schools closed last week. Now you can find the average boy lounging around the stores.

We are sorry to write the fact that Miss Guise's scholars serenaded her on the last day while returning home,with tin cans, pans, bells &c. This shows the respect between teacher and pupil. Shame boys, nothing manly in such actions.

Dr. Dauglees Liniment prepared by Shook Bro's is one of the best medicines of the kind in the market. It has done more to alleviate the pain for Mrs. Harriet Condo than all others.

On Saturday morning as the train came in Mr. John Sweetwood made a very narrow escape with his life at the iron bridge crossing. The train came along in two sections and when the engine had passed by Mr. S. supposed that was all and started to cross, when the balance of the train struck his horse,throwing horse, buggy and man almost 20 feet away. The horse was killed almost instantly,buggy smashed up and Mr. S. being a very old man (83 years old) was thrown on the pile of debris, had two ribs broken and was generally bruised up. Has been in bed ever since. Now why is it that the train can't come as it should.

On Sunday the Union S. S. School elected the following officers: Peter Wilson, Superintendent; J. S. Krape, E. Fetterhoff and Jno. F. Breon, ass't Superintendent's D. W. Duncan, Secetary; Ed Jordan, Ass't Secetary; J. B. Crawford,Librarian; A. E. Alexander, Ass't Librarian; W. From, Treasurer; Florence Krape, Chorister; Mrs. Mary A. Crawford, Organist.

For over a week Mr. B. F. Sechler is unable to fill his place in the store on account of sickness. Hope he will soon recover.

Our friend Geo. M. Leitzel left Coburn about two weeks ago. He is very much missed.

The visitors at Coburn last week were: Mrs. J. A. Catherman of Mifflinburg; Miss McCormick of Potters Mills,Miss Mazie Smull of Centre Mills and Mr. Isaiah Walter of Laurelton.

Discovery in Alaska.

A New River, and Flowers Blooming Within the Arctic Circle.

Lieutenant Storey, who went up on the last trip of the revenue steamer Thomas Corwin for the purpose of distributing among the Tehackchee Indians of Alaska the $5,000 worth of presents given by the government in recognition of the fact that they afforded shelter and food to the officers and crew of the steamer Rogers, burned in 1881, reports the discovery of an immense river hitherto unknown to geographers. The river had been vaguely spoken of by Indians to former explorers, and Lieutenant Storey, being compelled to await the return trip or the Corwin, determined to see if it existed. Accompanied by one attendant and an interpreter he proceeded inland from Hothan inlet in a southeasterly direction until he struck what he believed to be the mysterious river. He traced it to its mouth,a distance of about fifteen miles,where he saw such huge pieces of floating timber as to satisfy him that the stream must be of immense size. He retraced his steps for a distance of fifty miles, where he encountered natives, from whom he learned that to reach the head waters of the unknown stream would take several months.

The Indians told him that they had come down the river a distance of 1,500 miles to meet a fur trader, and that it went up higher than that. Having no time to go further, Lieutenant Storey returned. In his opinion, as stated by those on the Corwin, from which this information was obtained, that the discovery of this river accounts for the large quantities of floating timber in the Arctic ocean, which was popularly supposed to come down the Yukon river. The Indians stated that the river in some places is twenty miles wide. It lies within the Arctic circle,but in August, when Lieutenant Storey was there, he found flowers and vegetation not hitherto discovered in so high a latitude. He has forwarded his report to the Secretary of the Navy, and hopes to be permitted to go back and continue his explorations.

MGR. CAPEL was asked what struck him most forcibly in this country, and he replied, "The precociousness of children. He says that while in Baltimore the Archbishop took him to call on a lady. While making the visit a boy aged four years came in the room, and his mother said, "My son, speak to the Archbishop." He obeyed readily,and, holding out his hand,said : "How do, Arch ?"

FRANCE AND EGYPT.—France's proposition, made through M. Waddington, to land troops at Saukim and march them to Khartoum to relieve that city, leaving the ultimate settlement of the Soudan question to a conference of the Powers, is a generous and magnificent offer, but hardly helps England out of her scrape, as it contemplates the submission of the whole subject of dominion in Egypt to the judgement of Europe. This time France strikes while the iron is hot.—Herald.

A WHIPPING.—The Indianapolis police were told that a man was whipping his wife in a tenement block near the heart of the city ; but instead they found the wife, arrayed in only one garment cowhiding her husband. He was once Superintendent of the State Institute in Ohio. Lately he had been reduced by drink, until his wife had to support herself. She told the officers that the doctor had reached home drunk, and that, patience having ceased to be a virtue, she had resorted to the cowhide to bring him to his senses.

DELAWARE RIVER CHEMICAL WORKS,
BAUGH & SONS,
Philadelphia, Feb. 4, 1884.

To Farmers of Pennsylvania :

Gentlemen :—For over twenty-eight years we have manufactured Raw-Bone Phosphates, and our brands have become household words in nearly every section of the country. In many communities the demand for them has increased, while in others the sales have declined, on account of the preference for lower-priced goods. Six years ago,finding that the demand for goods of lower cost had become almost universal, and having peculiar advantages of raw materials and manufacturing facilities, we determined to meet this demand, and introduced a TWENTY-FIVE DOLLAR PHOSPHATE, made by a NEW PROCESS EXCLUSIVELY OUR OWN. The quickness with which this Phosphate sprang into use among intelligent farmers will be shown by the following statement :

Of the $25 Phosphate there were sold

During 1879,	1,287	Tons.
" 1880,	3,957	"
" 1881,	5,147	"
" 1882,	8,288	"
" 1883,	10,128	"

The reports of the action of the $25 Phosphate have been satisfactory in every case from a wide inquiry. We want to be informed upon this point very plainly, as it is our interest to know if the article continues to produce good results. We will thank any farmer, having used the $25 Phosphate with disappointing results, to let us hear from him with full facts.

Yours truly,
BAUGH & SONS.

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever,and the pulse more frequent,the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

CONSUMPTION

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and AGUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER,

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections—the King of Blood Purifiers.

DR. JOHN BULL'S VEGETABLE WORM DESTROYER is prepared in the form of candy drops, attractive to the sight and pleasant to the taste.
